PHCC to Comment on Lead Paint Document PHCC, along with the Lead Paint Coalition, will soon submit comments to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on a framework document recently released EPA. The document outlines the approach EPA intends to take as it drafts a new lead paint regulation governing commercial and public buildings. The coalition will argue that EPA is depending on computer modeling in order to assess health risks of lead paint dust exposure in commercial and public buildings, rather than scientific data and research. PHCC will make the comments available to members once they have been filed.
